WELCOME TO THE PRESIDENT.
To-day the president of the United States will for a short time be the guest of Omaha. When he arrives here he will have reached the limit of his journey westward, though he will have penetrated little beyond what is now recognized as the eastern boundary of the great west. Onward toward the setting sun stretches a vast territory, from the larger part of which states are yet to be carved out, and which will in time give homes to millions of people, with bustling cities, every variety of industry, productive farms, and all the possessions and conditions of the highest forms of civilization. Here, indeed, is the gateway to this great region with all its rich stores of developed and undeveloped wealth, which within another generation is to contribute immeasurably to the prosperity of the nation.

In this young, vigorous and growing metropolis Mr. Cleveland will find one of the best evidences that has been presented in his journey of what American energy and enterprise can accomplish. We take it that he has not failed to inform himself regarding the history of Omaha, the youngest city of its population, wealth and commercial importance on the continent, but observation will do more than all the facts and figures he could glean to convince him that here indeed is one of the phenomenal developments of the last twenty years. Having a personal interest in Omaha, Mr. Cleveland will not fail to duly consider what has been accomplished toward making this a great city in order that he may estimate the possibilities of the future. He will hardly find it possible to regard the outlook otherwise than most encouraging.

Omaha will give the president a most cordial and sincere welcome. This community yields to no other in its respect for the presidential office. Mr. Cleveland may find here less of that wildly demonstrative enthusiasm than he has encountered at some other points on his trip, but he will have no reason to doubt the heartiness of his reception or the earnestness of his welcome. Every citizen, regardless of political affiliations, will join in paying honor to the chief executive of the republic. And the handsome, accomplished and amiable wife of the president will receive her full share of the popular interest and attention. She has filled her position with a modest dignity that reflects honor on American womanhood and has justly commanded her to universal admiration.

Omaha is decorated in the emblems of liberty and union, and extends to the president of the United States its heartiest and sincerest welcome.

The Nebraska Democracy.
In the face of more than twenty-five thousand majority and without the faintest shadow of hope to carry the state, the Nebraska democracy have again gone through the farce of nominating a state ticket. The standard bearers have the proud satisfaction and assurance that their memory is to be embalmed for all time in the political almanacs for 1888. It is not our purpose at this time to review their past career or discuss their fitness for the positions which nobody in or out of the convention expects them to fill. Suffice it to say that some men are born great while others have greatness thrust upon them.

The platform of the Nebraska democracy abounds in the time-worn platitudes "that pater with us in a double sense; that keep the word of promise to our ear, and break it to our hope." With the exception of its endorsement of the national democratic administration, it is almost literally a stereotyped copy of the platforms for Mr. Miller has held letters patent for more than fifteen years.

Mr. Randall and the Tariff.
Just before his departure from Washington for Atlanta, Mr. Randall was induced to say something about the tariff, though it was very little. He would not discuss propositions that may come before congress next winter, and referred to his well-known views on revenue matters as a sufficient answer to all inquiries regarding his future course. He did venture so far, however, as to say that he is in favor of revision, but opposed the destruction of the tariff. He also reaffirmed his position respecting the internal revenue taxes, which he desires abolished because they are war taxes and are opposed the genius of the government.

There is really nothing reassuring in this last conversation of Mr. Randall. It does not show that his views or intentions have undergone any change, or afford any ground for expecting that his attitude on this question in the next congress will be different from that he held in the last two congresses. His claim that he has been prepared for several years to assist in the revision of the tariff is worth very little in view of the character of the revision he desires. The plan of Mr. Randall, like that of all the protectionists, is not the plan which would give the necessary relief to the people. He has not and will not propose a reduction of duties on those articles which are necessities in every home and on every farm in the land, but on the contrary has and will continue to oppose any such reduction. Just what he would be willing to yield, in order to accomplish the abandonment of the internal revenue taxes, cannot be stated with certainty, but it can be very confidently said that it would not include iron, lumber, coal, salt, cotton and woolen goods, or any one of them. Yet a revision which should entirely exclude them would give very little relief to the people.

Mr. Randall says he is opposed to the destruction of the tariff. How many people does he know of who are not? But it is obviously absurd to maintain that in order to save it from destruction it is necessary to continue the present high and oppressive duties. Equally wanting in force is the argument that the internal revenue taxes must be abolished because they are war taxes and contrary to the genius of the government. These taxes are borne by the people without any sense of hardship. They do not contribute to the advantage of any special interests. They are paid directly into the public treasury, which derives all the benefit. Still those who demand a revision of the tariff in the direction of lower duties are willing to concede the abandonment of a portion of the internal revenue taxes, but they are not willing that they shall be all swept away, as the protectionists desire, so that the retention of the present tariff shall become a necessity.

The indications are that Mr. Randall will be found in the same policy of which he has always been the champion, and using all the power and skill of which he is possessed in obstructing a just and necessary policy of revenue reform.

The Grain Movement.
The situation in the grain market during the past week showed no improvement as to prices over the previous two or three weeks. The movement of grain toward the east is largely on the increase, however, and in some quarters, especially in the northwest, complaints are heard over the inability or indifference of the railroads in supplying cars as fast as they are needed. Competition between the large elevator companies and shippers of smaller lots has become very sharp in consequence. The farmers claim that the elevator combinations get more than their share of the cars, while the latter argue that they ought to have, because of the much greater bulk of grain to be moved. Dakota wheat growers are discussing the feasibility of building and equipping a north and south road along the Minnesota boundary to reach the wheat markets, to be operated for their own benefit exclusively. They hope by this means to avoid paying the large tributes to the railroad monopolies now exacted, and thereby secure greater profits from agricultural labors than they now obtain. More extended co-operation among the farmers of the country would no doubt result in bringing many of the monopolies now preying upon them, to terms.

It would perhaps be a good thing for the democracy and for the country if Cox of New York should be given the chairmanship of the ways and means committee of the next house of representatives, instead of Mills of Texas. Mr. Cox has not distinguished himself in connection with questions of finance and revenue, and would probably not have an inordinate ambition to do so. He would therefore doubtless be tractable and willing to give fair attention to the views of other men wiser on the subject than he. Mr. Mills, on the contrary, has very radical views which he thoroughly believes in, and he is the sort of man to insist upon his opinions. There would be rather more likelihood of something being accomplished if Cox were at the head of the ways and means committee than if in that position. It will not be an easy matter, however, to ignore the claims of Mills, and the chances are largely in his favor. It is current surmise that there will be some changes in the republican membership of the committee in order that the new members who must be appointed shall not be too greatly overbalanced by the experience and special ability of such men as Kelley, Reed and McKinley. If it is the intention of the administration, however, to direct the policy to be pursued so far as the revenue question is concerned, it may not be of very great importance how the ways and means committee is made up.

They Think Well of Omaha.
Patrick Galligan, brother of Chief Galligan of the fire department, returned from Denver yesterday morning. He was present at the reception given by the citizens of Denver to the old firemen of New York, and in every speech, Mr. Galligan says, the reception committee was very complimentary to Omaha. He said that he had received great cordiality all along the line from the eastern cities, but he had to say without any choice of words, that the Nebraska people were "the trump." Captain James Boyle, in response to "Our Western Trip," also gave Omaha a good send off.

A Sorrowful Wife.
Mrs. Joseph Lebrich, of Twenty-fifth and Blondo streets, made application to the police commissioners yesterday to have her husband cared for. She alleges that her husband was shot and killed by a man named Anderson at the time he was being taken to the police station. Since that time Mrs. Lebrich claims her husband has been growing worse in health and she cannot support him. The case is taken under consideration.

Why the Delay?
The city council ordered the gas company four weeks ago to place pipes on Mercer street, between 10th and 11th streets, and up to date no lamps have been placed there. The water works company was also instructed to place several hydrants on Walnut Hill, but none have been placed. The city is anxiously inquiring as to the cause of the delay.

A Farewell Reception.
The actor and vestry of St. Barnabas church tendered a farewell reception to Mr. George F. Labagh at the rectory last evening. The occasion was the eve of his departure on a prolonged absence to California. The affair was a brilliant social event, and enjoyable to the highest degree. The music was furnished by Hoffman's orchestra. Over thirty couples were present.

Briefs.
A Swede named B. O. Johnson, while under the influence of liquor, last evening tried to rob Joe Whiter, who was passing through on his way to the depot. The drunken brawler failed to get any plunder, and falling into the hands of Officers Johnson and Ward was sent to the central police station.

The Platform Presented By Judge Woolworth Endorses Cleveland With a Redundancy of High-Sounding Words.

The State Convention.
The democratic state convention met last evening at the board of trade hall with a large representation present. Owing to the limited space it was thought best to exclude the general public, and admission was gained only by ticket. At 8:30 o'clock James E. North rapped the convention to order with a reportorial case, and when order was secured, said:

Gentlemen of the Convention: The hour has come to call this convention to order and it gives me pleasure to call it to order. During my political life, which has been a very active one for the last fifteen or twenty years, I never met a democratic convention where there was such unanimity of feeling and such unanimity of action as we see in this delegation. In the meeting of the state committee to-day, the unanimity was such that it was difficult to get a man to make a motion lest it should be interpreted as evidence of a job. There was one motion made, however, to appoint a temporary chairman, but that motion was withdrawn with the understanding that the chairman of the convention should be left to the convention when it was called to order. That unanimity, I think, exists in this body, and when the delegates leave the hall to-day they will go with the impression that the object of the party is to beat republicans and not to fight democracy.

Forest Lawn Cemetery.
A meeting of the trustees of Forest Lawn Cemetery association was held last night at 1505 Farnam street. The business of the evening consisted in reviewing reports of the superintendent and officers, all of which showed the affairs of the association to be in a flourishing condition, and the cemetery in good repair. The association is constructing a new lot, and has elected temporary secretary, and R. P. Wahlgust, of Red Willow, assistant temporary secretary.

Williams pleaded guilty to the charge preferred against him and was promptly sentenced by the judge to serve a term of one year in the penitentiary. Williams entered the residence of J. B. Meredith on Friday night, and stole a quantity of jewelry valued at about $100, which was found in his possession when arrested.

AURORA, Neb., Oct. 11.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The attention of the district court to-day, Judge Norvall presiding, was mostly occupied in trying the case of Mrs. Kuhn vs. Owen Sullivan, a former saloon-keeper, for selling her husband liquor. The suit was brought by Mrs. Sullivan, who claims that her husband is a drunkard, and that she has been injured by his drinking. The case went to the jury late this evening and they are now out.

Carlisle's Miserable Depot.
DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 11.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—The railroad commission recently received a letter from A. B. Sheemaker, of Carlisle, saying in reference to the Rock Island depot: "The present waiting room is an open insult to our respectability. It is a disgrace to the city. It is no fault of the agent. Four former agents have experienced failing health in the miserable old building, and our present most gentlemanly incumbent is beginning to feel the depressing influence of the wretched, gloomy atmosphere. Our state board of health ought to pronounce it a nuisance." The complaint was referred to the board of health, and immediately acquainted Superintendent Given with the facts. Mr. Given replied that the Rock Island did not own the waiting room, but contemplated the erection of a new and commodious depot.

Stanley's Progress in Africa.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—A private letter to Lieutenant E. H. Taunt, U. S. N., from Stanley, the agent and right hand man at Kinshasa, Stanley Pool, Central Africa, bearing date early in September, says that Stanley has traveled 150 miles further up Aruwiri river since the sending of the last dispatches, and has thus already penetrated further than any explorer has gone before. Two entrenched camps were built at the new place, and Stanley's men appear to be unnecessary as the natives do not appear to be disposed to attack the party. Mr. Stanley and his men are in the same place in good health and spirits. Stanley sent the steamer Florida back to Stanley Pool for more stores and men.

Enthusiastically Received.
LONDON, Oct. 11.—Joseph Chamberlain, who, in company with Jesse Collins, left Birmingham yesterday to make a tour of Ireland, was received with much enthusiasm upon his arrival in that country. He made several speeches, in which he declared that the time would come when the tithers of the soil would be its owners.

Suit For Foreclosure.
The Connecticut River Savings bank, of Charlestown, N. H., by Lewis & Lewis, its solicitors, of Lincoln, Neb., filed a bill of foreclosure in the United States court yesterday morning against Martin McManis, of this state. The amount involved is $3,000.

foremost of the high-license law is the most practical and effective temperance measure. We are glad to see that the friends of the law and of the people are so fully sympathetic in their heroic struggle to establish the blessings of home-rule for down-trodden Ireland and to prevent the exportation of British government to execute the severe and arbitrary measures known as the "coercion act" upon the Irish people.

We condemn the action of the last republican legislature in passing the prison contract bill, and we especially condemn Governor Thayer for approving said bill, and we denounce his action in anticipating the protest of the labor interests by signing the bill before they were able to be heard by him.

The resolutions were adopted unanimously. The second ballot gave O'Day 381 and Hagan 118.

On motion of Mr. North the convention decided to adjourn to-day, Monday, October 12, at 10 o'clock, in a body. The next meeting will be held at 10 o'clock, Monday, October 12, at 10 o'clock, in a body. The next meeting will be held at 10 o'clock, Monday, October 12, at 10 o'clock, in a body.

Mr. Robidoux was a prominent citizen of St. Joseph, and was a member of the St. Joseph club.

Death of Minister Manning.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—Judge Thomas C. Manning, United States minister to Mexico, died this morning at Fifth avenue hotel. He had been suffering for some time from heart disease, and his death was the result of a rupture of an artery. He was a native of Louisiana, and came into national prominence early last summer as the successor of Mr. Jackson, of Georgia, in the United States ministry to Mexico. His death was a great loss to the United States.

A Noted Forger Turned Loose.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—[Special Telegram to the Bee.]—William E. Brockway, the most noted forger of this country, walked out of the prison yesterday morning, having finished what he declared should be his last term in prison. But it would not surprise the prison officials to see him again in due time. He is nearly seventy years of age, but he has all his faculties clear and bright, and may yet do some of his old tricks. The prison has put him in fine health. The special offense for which he served his last term was counterfeiting five years. The United States marshal, for this he was arrested November 10, 1883, and pleading guilty secured from Recorder Smyth, March 4, 1884, the light sentence of five years. The term expired by favor commutation, expired yesterday.
